LAWYER JOKES

In juvenile court, where a teen suspected of burglary was being prosecuted, the judge asked everyone to stand and state his or her name and role for the court reporter.

"Leah Rauch, deputy prosecutor."

"Linda Jones, probation officer."

"Sam Clark, public defender."

"John," said the teen who was on trial. "I'm the one who stole the truck."

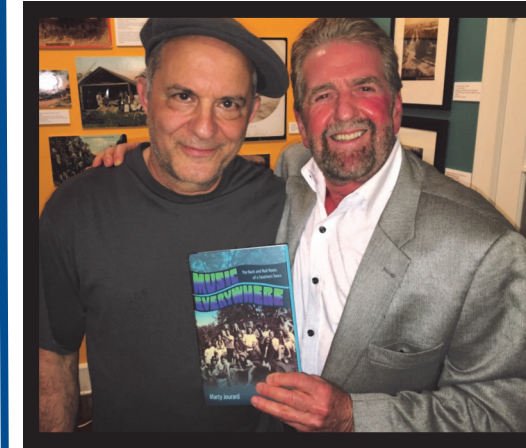

A woman was dragged into court by a neighbor who complained about her barking dogs. At one point, the judge asked the neighbor a question. The neighbor didn't reply. "Sir, are you going to answer me?" asked the judge.

The neighbor leaped to his feet. "Are you talking to me?" he asked. "Sorry; I can't hear a darn thing."

The case was dismissed.

MUSIC EVERYWHERE

The official book signing for "Music Everywhere: The Rock and Roll Roots of a Southern Town" written by Gainesville native Marty Jourard was held at the Matheson Museum on April 21, 2016. The book documents the music scene in Gainesville, Florida during the 1960's and 1970's. Future Rock and Roll Hall of Famers Stephen Stills, Tom Petty and The Heartbreakers, and The Eagles founding members Bernie Leadon and Don Felder had their roots in Gainesville during that time period. Marty Jourard and his brother Jeff Jourard were in a well-known group called "The Motels". And, of course, Bo Diddley called the Gainesville area his adopted home.

The book describes the incredible melting pot of musical influences that young Gainesville kids were exposed to. Rock and Roll, Country, Rhythm and Blues, Gospel and Jazz were all commonplace in the Deep South and, in particular, a large college community like the University of Florida. Marty documents how local musicians migrated from one band to another trying to make their name locally and later on nationally. He describes the contribution that local stores like Lipham's Music and The Subterranean Circus had on the local scene. And well known bars like Dubs where Tom Petty and his group Mudcrutch honed their skills not to be deterred by the semi-nude dancing girls Dub Thomas had positioned on both sides of the band.

And the book has a section titled “Hippie Attorney” describing the contributions to the local music scene by Yours Truly Jeffrey Meldon. Prior to the opening of my law office in 1971, I worked closely with Tom Petty and the Mudcrutch Band putting on what became known as the “Mudcrutch Festivals” (a/k/a Gainesville’s Woodstock) in late 1970 and early 1971. When I first opened my law office, I held myself out as a music attorney and worked with Mudcrutch helping them book dates.

Minnie Riperton and her husband, Dick Rudolph, an old friend from my youth, moved to town and worked with me looking for a venue to open a performing arts theater. However, their daughter Maya Rudolph, (SNL and movies) was born at Alachua General Hospital in July of 1972 and Minnie and Dick wrote a song that eventually became a number one single nationally. “Lovin’ You” was a song about their love for their new daughter Maya. Dick and Minnie moved to LA to launch her career as a solo artist (Minnie had previously been the lead singer for “The Rotary Connection”).

In 1974 while running a successful law practice that had expanded to 5 people, I was approached by Jim Forsman, a young clothing store owner (The Young American Shop) about leasing the Florida Theater, an 800 seat movie theater, and turning it into a performing arts venue. Of course I said “YES!” On March 30, 1974 Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs performed the first live concert at “The Great Southern Music Hall”. Between 1974 and 1978 the Great Southern “The Showplace of the South” presented artists such as Bo Diddley, Jerry Lee Lewis, Jimmy Buffet, Bob Seger, Bonnie Raitt, Muddy Waters, Steve Martin, B.B. King, Ray Charles, Howlin’ Wolf, Greg Allman, Dave Brubeck, Richie Havens, Steppenwolf, Cheech and Chong, Waylon Jennings, Eric Burdon, Count Basie, Taj Mahal, Randy Newman, Minnie Riperton and many, many more.

Please support Marty Jourard’s epic journey to chronicle the history of the Gainesville Music Scene. You can purchase his book on Amazon or at the Matheson Museum, 513 E. University Avenue, Gainesville Florida.

This month’s topic of interest: May 2016

Each month our staff takes a number of calls from people within the North Central Florida Community. Although we aren’t always able to take every case we receive, there is always an opportunity to educate others. Here’s a topic worth discussing.

War Memorial in Gainesville Needs Our Help

Dan Weisman

I grew up in Gainesville, and spent a few years in the military after college. Now that I’m moving back here with my wife and our two little guys, it’s been really great to see what a veteran-friendly community we have here in Gainesville and throughout Alachua County and Marion County. There are upwards of 50 memorials, sites, and plaques in Gainesville alone remembering and honoring the fallen.

One particular site is the Veterans’ Memorial, which is located at the corner of SW 75th St. and SW 41st Place, also known as Kanapaha Park, in Gainesville. It is a linear memorial that basically presents as a timeline of events, with a number of pillars, each one representing a different military conflict. I was really disappointed (and a bit angry) when I looked at a recent newspaper and saw that vandals had recently destroyed a pillar at the Memorial representing all the service members who lost their lives since 9/11.

A movement is afoot to fix the memorial, to which our law firm is making a contribution. I’d like to welcome everyone else in the community to do the same. Feel free to let them know that you heard about the efforts from our firm! Make checks payable to The Veterans Memorial Committee at:

Gainesville, FL 32605

Memorial Day is coming up, and will be observed on Monday, May 30, 2016. Helping to get the Memorial fixed would be just one more way for a great community to remember and honor those who gave real meaning to the phrase “freedom’s never free.”
